ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Macalester Faculty Development International Seminar (FDIS) would not have been nearly as successful in accomplishing its goals without the singular support of the Ford Foundation's "Difficult Dialogues" grant. We are grateful for each component of the Foundation's beneficence. The Palestinian/Israeli conflict represents one of the most intractable struggles of our time. It is multi-layered, complex, and intertwined with symbols and emotion. Yet it cannot be ignored. It must be understood, grappled with, and, someday, put to rest. The Difficult Dialogues grant enabled our cohort of faculty and staff to enter that challenging milieu.

In addition to the authors of the commissioned essays, this FDIS also depended heavily on the contributions of thought-provoking oral presentations, cultural guidance, insights into the challenging themes of the seminar, and the kind of hospitality and camaraderie that Israel and Palestine are known for across the globe. We greatly appreciate the individuals listed below for helping to make the seminar a valuable enterprise in so many ways.

Albert Aghazarian, Independent Scholar and former faculty member in the Department of History, Birzeit University. Topic: A Socio-Cultural and Historical Introduction to Jerusalem and Topic: Seminar Excursion: Walking Visit in Jerusalem.
